MOVIE REVIEW

Raabila

- Cast: Himesh Reshammiya, Ayesha Jhulka, Bobby Deol, Zayed Khan

Synopsis: The movie is a historical drama set in the 1990s, depicting the riots in Delhi that followed the Babri Masjid demolition in Ayodhya.

Review: The movie seeks to convey the grievances of people by contrasting the harshest realities of life—poverty, violence and hopelessness. However, the movie is muddled and neither explores the core issue of the story nor delves deep into the characters.

Lajja (Shame) was published in Bengali in February 1993 and quickly sold sixty thousand copies before it was banned. The story was provoked by an incident in India three months before the novel's publication: Hindu extremists destroyed an Islamic mosque. In Bangladesh, the violent backlash was against the Hindu minority (approximately 10 percent of the country's population). Lajja is the uncomplicated story of a Hindu family of pacifists, living outside of Dacca during the time of the backlash.
