Joseph Gibaldi.Â MLA is a reference tool used in subject areas for the Humanities. It provides extensive guidelines on how to formulate a topic, format a research paper, cite parenthetical texts and compile a list of works cited in English as well as other foreign languages. Other useful capabilities include documenting online sources, writing a quote from an e-mail received or incorporating abbreviations in your list of references. There is also in-depth discussion on plagiarism. Parenthetical Citations In general, MLA requires parenthetical citations, or citations that are put in parentheses, in the text, di

"The MLA Handbook" is addressed primarily to secondary-school and undergraduate college and university students and teachers in those disciplines. It is one of two publications of the Modern Language Association of America presenting MLA style written by Joseph Gibaldi, MLA Director of Book Acquisitions and Development ("Book Publications Program: General Information"). # Although underlining is rendered in print through italicization, MLA style recommends that writers of research papers and scholars preparing manuscripts for publication by presses use underlining, unless directed that italicization is permissible or preferred. [quote] [Section] 3.3. ITALICS (UNDERLINING) Italic is a style of type in which the characters slant to the right ("Casablanca"). When writing a research paper, lab report or any other type of academic assignment, you will likely use resources such as books, articles and websites written by other people to support your argument. However, when using someone else's information, you must indicate where that information came from (credit must be given where credit is due). Please note: In previous editions of the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, a URL was included in the Works Cited entry for an online resource. The 7th edition of the handbook recommends including a URL as supplementary information only when the reader probably cannot locate the source without it OR when your instructor requires it" check with your instructor for his/her preference.
