Get to know your site

This is one of the most impressively located sites on the network, only a short walk from the old town, it is almost in the shadow of the ancient Abbey, with superb mature trees screening it.

You can explore the old town on foot – there are many historic buildings and interesting walks from the site, as well as some excellent museums. On Wednesdays and Saturdays, you can track down the odd bargain or two at the market. You can walk the Battle Trail too, commemorating the famous battle in the Wars of the Roses (1471). Take a boat cruise on the river, leaving from the Old Mill to explore the Avon.

It's a marvellous touring centre, the Cotswold villages of Broadway, Winchcombe and Moreton-in-Marsh are within easy driving distance as are the Malvern Hills and the Forest of Dean.

Tewkesbury Abbey has myriad stories to tell: all you have to do is look around; including under your feet. The whole place needs careful attention. There is evidence of history everywhere (look for the places where the stonework is pink: it is a sign of fire damage.)[^] We were staying in the town during the town's Christmas fair in the Abbey, so it was very busy but lovely!
